Taking Pictures Mister?

"YES, son! . . . and that's only the beginning.

For, from the photograph—which may be a street scene, or a "model shot" for a daring new perfume, or a portrait of a new washing machine, or an interior view of a rolling mill—

RGB carries the medium of photography into a myriad applications . . . into, for instance, the making of printing plates for advertising, editorial, educational and decorative purposes. Yes, son, taking pictures is only the beginning—and just one of the things we do at RGB."

All engravings appearing in the Pictorial section of this edition were manufactured by this company.

Editorial

As we draw near the end of another school year and this magazine goes to press, we, the editors, have been called upon to make some remarks about everything in general and nothing in particular.

We wish to give our sincere thanks to Mr. Paradissis, Stuart Marwick, and Alan Wilkins for donating much of their spare time to the betterment of this magazine, and to everyone else who in any way helped to make this magazine the success we hope it will be.

We have tried to make this magazine as interesting as possible, and at times we have strayed somewhat from the traditions of former magazines. We have added various features that we think you will enjoy and which perhaps will become traditions in the future.

All in all, this year has been very enjoyable. In many ways school activities, especially sports, have not been too spectacular, but we feel that this last part of the year will make up for the disappointments suffered in the fall and winter terms.

We have had several occasions when former members of Stanstead College gathered here en masse, and many old acquaintances were renewed. It is very noteworthy that these former "old grads" feel it worthwhile to pay their Alma Mater a visit. We trust that the present graduates will do the same in the future.

It has brought us great pleasure to add in a small way, something to the general impressions of the college. We sincerely hope that you will get much enjoyment out of our efforts. Our best wishes are extended to all our readers and especially to our fellow graduates.

THE EDITORS.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

As the time of Closing draws near, we come once again to that bittersweet experience of School graduation. Everyone looks forward to the time when he or she will leave School to enjoy the greater independence of life in some other kind of community. At the same time one cannot help but realize that a familiar phase of one's life now draws to its close. Many of the friendships which you have made over the years will be broken by distance. Many of the ties you thought so strong will weaken and fade. As you go out from Stanstead, however, we hope that what you have learned here will enable you to meet people and learn to judge whether or not you wish them for your friends.

Our graduates are moving into a country in which prosperity has never been greater. Employers are clamouring for the services of any trained people. Despite this prospect of easy employment, I hope that many of you will not be satisfied with the education standard you have now attained, but will go on in study so that you may be able to make, in the years to come, a great contribution to the life of our Country.

Your School wishes you well in whatever field of endeavour you may find yourself.

Sincerely,
L. C. MacPherson,
Principal.

Mr. F. Gordon LeBaron, B.Comm.

CLASS PROPHECY — XI

Year: 1981.

Place: Unknown.

Clipping from Newspaper.

Former Class of S.W.C. Killed in Explosion.

Yesterday a terrific explosion disintegrated the house of Benjamin "Fatso" Gray, retired swindler and con-man, who, along with former Grade XI pupils of 1956 at S.W.C. were celebrating their 25th anniversary of their release from that place. It is stated that the cause of the explosion was a demonstration by the Ross House Trio (MARWICK, TAYLOR & STEWART) showing how they exploded gunpowder "back in '56".

Next of kin having been notified, the following are the obituaries:

BACHELDER, LUCILLE. Tap dancer at "Wilkins Stork Club".

BACON, RODNEY. Social welfare officer for Martian & Plutonian immigrants to earth. Rodney had just returned from a goodwill tour of Venus where he had convinced some of the nimble-footed two-ton monsters to attend Stanstead College this fall to help out the football team.

BLACHFORD, KELSEY. Kelsey had made several tours of Russia and had just received the title "Comrade Heroine" in the hope that she would return to teach the Russians weight-lifting for the Olympics.

BOUCHARD, ANDRE. Last week Andre returned from the depths of Deepest Africa where he had been hunting wild boars to keep his sausage business going. The lack of pigs in Canada and U.S.A. had been a source of worry to him lately.

CASS, JANET. World famous hair stylist who had just started the fashion of red and white striped hair.

FARWELL, PETER. Chief of the Universal Space Patrol. This is a "tough break" for all the Earth as Peter was supposed to race his Super X15D27 Space Ship against all comers.

FERLAND, RICHARD. This man had made himself famous by his complete mastery of all known languages. His editorials in the "Ferland-Vokey Daily Gazette" will be missed by all people of the Solar System.

GERRIE, MICHAEL. Mike had just retired after 20 years with the Montreal Canadiens in which time he had 12 goals scored against him. Each goal was scored when the puck careened off his nose into the net.

GRAY, BENJAMIN. After spending some time in jail for swindling, diamond mine robberies and innumerable petty thefts, FATSO had just gone into retirement with his ill-gained wealth. It is not certain where he kept his money before his capture but it is believed that some was hidden in the girls' locker room in S.W.C.

HENDERSON, GORDON. Gordon, as you well know, was world-famous for his comic book "Rocky Henderson, All-World Athlete". It is fairly certain he got the source of his material from his GREAT exploits in sports at West Hill and Stanstead College and various other places. The younger generation will doubtless miss this great athlete.

LEITHMAN, DANIEL. Danny, because of his great scholastic process in Grade XI, 1956 had been head of the English Departments for all known universities of the world. He had been given honorary titles in all phases of education. For a list of Prof. Leithman's degrees, send 25¢ (for postage) to this paper and we will send out the parcel in return mail.

LEMON, OLAF. Olaf had just recovered from a broken foot received when he dropped on it, one of the three pool tables he was carrying to Stanstead College. "Lemon's Pool Table Delivery Service" is nationally famous. Olaf had been famous "back in '56" for his ability to lift one pool table, although recently he has lifted as many as six. He wrote French essays as a sideline.

MARWICK, STUART. Stuart, as is known by all, was the Nobel Prize winner for his newly improved robot. This robot can do anything a farmwife can do (cook, sew, wash clothes, etc.), and can argue incessantly with people such as Stuart who enjoy that pastime.

MATTHIAMS, GARY. It seems this old man was on the verge of making an important announcement at the time of the explosion. In the past 25 years, TEX had become a bookworm and had studied every known book to find proof that George Washington was the 4th President. The proof—if he found it, doubtless disappeared with him in the explosion.

PROBYN, ARLENE. Arlene, who disappeared in 1956 because it was necessary for her to take an Oral French exam, returned in time for the reunion asking if it was still necessary to take it. It is now certain she won't have to.

PHILIP, ALEX. Alex had been the world-famous band leader and idol of the "bobby soxers". It is estimated that he lost 16 tuxedos a week to girl mobs. He has just lost his last tuxedo.

RAMSAY, HEATHER. Heather was the first woman to step off the spaceship onto Venus. It is regrettable that she decreased in height 4' 6". Due to the explosion she has now decreased entirely.

ROWLEY, PETER. Inventor of the modified super-oscillators stereophonic, frequency-modulated audiograph with vacuum-tube multimeter, superheterodyne circuit, R-F oscillators and built-in record player, television, alarm-clock and refrigerator.

SIMPSON, EDDY. World famous Entomologist who spent his time travelling the world, looking for bugs. He also collected blonds, red heads, and brunettes — but apparently didn't find them as interesting.

STEWART, JAMES. Designer of all practical space-ships and space stations. His original ideas came from designs dreamed up "back in '56" during Geometry and Algebra periods.

STUART, BRUCE. Inventor of the TRIPLE SHOT CHALK SHOOTER FOR CHILDREN for use in chalk fights during spare periods.

TAYLOR, BRIAN. This world-famous pianist wrote the popular "Taylor's Overture" in the Key of A# (Key of A sharp diminished). This is a combination of all pieces he invented at the Ross House Frolics "back in '56".

THOMSON, JOAN. Joan had just discovered a way she could grow tall and had grown to a height of 6' 6" in hopes of showing Heather that she could be tall too. However, she found it rather lonely up there since Heather shrank and so had spent the last few years trying to find an antidote that would make her small again. In the explosion she was as small as she'll ever be.

VOYEV, PATRICIA. Author of the much-read book "Excuses for School Kids for all Occasions". Despite the fact that School Associations tried to ban it, Pat's book has made the rounds. She was also Editor of the "Ferland-Vokey Daily Gazette" and wrote Latin editorials.

WHITE, BEVERLEY. This lady took over the radio program "Kindergarten of the Air". Because of her voice, it is said she received many thousands of letters asking who the child was that was singing on her program.

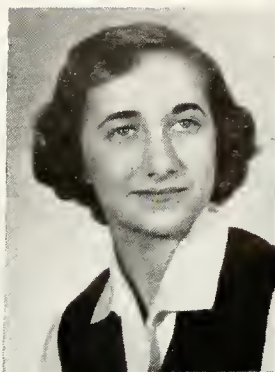

WILKINS, ALAN. This multi-trillionaire owned nearly all the show places in the world such as "Wilkins Stork Club", "Wilkins Copa Cabana", "Wilkins Monté Carlo Night Club", "Wilkins London Café", but the most famous of all was "Happy's Diner".

We deeply regret the unfortunate death of these world and universally-known personages. Rites will be held at Wilkins' Undertaking Parlor on Wednesday next. Please omit flowers.

Appreciation

The student members of the 1955-1956 Annual Board wish to thank the many people who made this magazine possible. We especially feel that this edition of the Annual would have been impossible without the aid of our Staff Advisor, Mr. Paradissis. We would also like to take this opportunity to thank Heather Ramsay, Joan Thomson, Ronda Cady, Elizabeth Phillip, and Edward Simpson who did a fine job of typing.

BUGBEE PROPHECY

I was down in the dumps! My feet ached, my head ached! All day I had been typing theses; every one written in the worst handwriting of the young men and women of Western University.

Oh — well! The day was over and the evening ahead of me. I put on my slippers, got a bowl of apples, pulled my favourite tabby cat into my lap, turned on the T.V., set to Channel XY and forgot all my troubles in watching some of my favourite programmes. I had just begun to doze a little when I was brought back to earth by the appearance of Bill Ross as a singing star on "What's my Rackett". Imagine my surprise when he burst into his theme song — "John Brown's Body" — My heart gave a leap — Why! His hidden talent must have been discovered the night of the Bugbee Prom. After three pounds of rotten tomatoes he was conducted from the stage. The last I heard he was singing in Lower Slobbovia. (He must have graduated). After this terrible experience the first guest on the program was a young lady from Hatley — Lois McClary. The panel had quite a time to guess her "rackett" . . . She actually was a speed typist. Her — a speed typist?? That really tickled me!

The next person to participate in this panel show was the charming Miss Betty Ann Colt. Can you imagine what her "rackett" is? The panel was stumped! Guess what? She was a spy for the F.B.I.

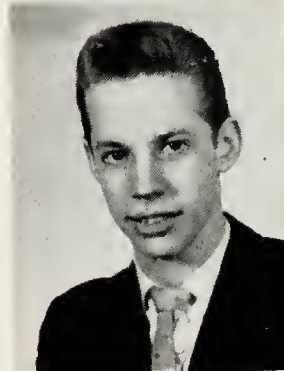

After seeing so many of my one-time school mates I was sorry to see the show end so soon. Now it was time for "My Secret", a program sponsored by "A Jacks", the foaming cleanser, and who do you suppose could "boom" it better than Guy Genest! After this brief commercial, to my surprise, who should bounce onto the stage but one of my former teachers, Miss M. Holmes. When the panel finally guessed her secret it was found that she was the 18th cousin (no less) of Sherlock Holmes. After a merry "Cheerio" she left the stage. Betty Laberee! Was I seeing things? Her on television? Oh, yes! I remember now, she just won the knitting marathon sponsored by the Johnston Baby Product Company. Miss Joan Johnston, President of the company, was presenting her with a silver cup for her five days continuous knitting. Imagine two old friends being reunited in such a surprising way! The program was interrupted by an important flash! Mr. Lin Lacoste was urging the public to beware of three baboons who had escaped from the Granby Zoo. Mr. Lacoste was caretaker at the Zoo and was very concerned about his pets, which he wished returned in good order.

LOIS McCLARY

"Loise"

Birthplace: Hatley, Que.
Fav. Exp.: Censored.
Asset: Her wit.
Ambition: To pass B.B.C.
Prob. Dest.: Passing by the skin of her teeth.
Pastime: Balling out her roommates.
Pet Aversion: Being called Loise.

Activities: Chorus, Gym Demonstration.

WILLIAM ROSS

Birthplace: Montreal.
Favourite Expression: "Hev!"
Asset: Blond hair.
Ambition: Hairdresser.
Prob. Dest.: Private Hairdresser to Gorgeous George.
Pastime: Women.
Pet Aversion: Work.
Theme Song: Oh You Beautiful Doll.
Activities: Students' Council, Cadets, President of Bugbee.

JANET SILVESTER

"Jan"

Birthplace: Beebe, Que.
Fav. Exp.: "Oh . . .!"
Asset: Her beautiful teeth.
Ambition: Nurse.
Prob. Dest.: Nursing some poor soul in Hamilton.
Pastime: Riding the Beebe bus.
Pet Aversion: Being teased.

JANET STEVENSON

Birthplace: East Angus, Que.
Fav. Exp.: "Anybody see Beatrice?"
Asset: Her height.
Ambition: Nurse.
Prob. Dest.: Working at Dominion Glove.
Pastime: Getting colds especially in English Class.
Pet Aversion: Reading lesson.
Theme Song: Too Young.

My head was spinning after seeing so many of my old school mates so I decided to retire. The next day I followed the regular routine. That night, to see if lightning strikes twice in the same place I turned on the T.V. set. The program was "Do You Trust Your Husband"? The first contestants were John Gaulin and Janet Stevenson. I couldn't believe it! They gave their name as Mr. and Mrs. John Gaulin. Things certainly had happened to that old Bugbee Class of ours. My! What you find out about your husband on this program! The way things went I'm quite sure a divorce will soon be in progress. After that episode I just had to switch over to "Grand Opera" coming from Montreal to soothe my nerves. My, what a beautiful voice this opera singer has! I wonder who she could possibly be? It's Patricia Dawson singing "The Old Grey Mayor". Well she certainly has come up in the world since our Chapel Exercises at Bugbee! I think it should be about time for the Ed Sullivanitski show as it is almost 8 o'clock. I don't want to miss it because last week they announced a surprise for tonight's show. (I wonder whether Mr. Sullivanitski will crack a smile tonight? No — An attractive old lady in her Easter bonnet-flower pot style — came careening onto the stage on one wheel of her modern, automatic wheel chair. This was the surprise! She was Mrs. Beth S. Smith, the oldest commercial teacher in the world. She used to be my teacher when I was a little bit of a irl at S.W.C. (Incidentally she's still there). Ed asked her secret for keeping so fresh and active — she replied, "It's the regular, wholesome meals I eat every day!! Goodness, it's already time for a commercial. They seem so frequent on this program and they're usually the same. There's a beautiful girl driving a slick Mercury '75 and dressed to kill. Wait a minute — that girl looks familiar. Where are my specs? Jumping Caddlehopper, it's Janet Silvester! She sat right behind me in B.B.C. Ed is introducing his renowned guests from the audience, the beautiful Doris Day now aging slightly and gorgeous Donda Cady, the only woman plastic surgeon specializing in nose remodelling. She's even remodelled her own. Another audience guest was Miss Kathleen Hill who is editor of the "Love-lorn Column" of the Rock Island Gabbler. She just completed her autobiography which tells about her hardships at Bugbee. It's really a tear-jerkling story.

I had been watching so closely I had not thought of opening my afternoon mail. Well there was an invitation to attend the opening of the New Bugbee Business College. What could be more fitting to the end of a perfect day!

CLASS PROPHECY — XII

As they turn on the T.V. set in S.W.C. in 1961, this is what might be heard: Good Evening Ladies and Gentlemen. This is your play by play announcer, Owen Wheelock, the score is two all with the Montreal Canadiens tied with the Detroit Red Wings. There is one minute, twenty-nine seconds left in the game. The teams are changing their lines. Coach Chuck Johnston of the Montreal Canadiens sends out his big gun, Rocket Zakaib along with Stenowiski, and Lousionniski. The puck is faced off in deep Montreal territory. The Rocket gets the draw, he circles behind the net, he's picking up speed, he's across the blue line, the red line, cutting around Nauseatski of Detroit, going in on goal, he fakes again, he shoots, he scores. The forum is a mad house, rubbers, hats, cushions, and programs litter the ice. The game is over and in a few minutes the Stanley Cup will be presented to Captain Fred Zakaib. And now this brief message from our sponsor:

"Friends, for quick and courteous service when travelling stop at your Houghton Hamburger sign. These revolutionary hamburgers, manufactured by The Tesker Houghton Company of Canada Ltd. are sure to please the most critical taste. So change now to Houghton's hamburgers available only at your Houghton Hamburger sign. And now we bring you back to the ice with Owen Wheelock."

"Here we are back on the ice and the cup is about to be presented to Captain Fred Zakaib by the well-known Speech Therapist Georgia Copland, bride-to-be of the president of the National Hockey League. The team Captain Zakaib receives a kiss from "Miss Houghton Hamburger" of 1961, Pat Nayler. Coach Chuck Johnston is now being carried on the ice by Stenowiski and Lousionniski. He puts his arms around the cup and kisses it. A red cap has his head in the way, why it's Ray Boadway fulfilling his lifelong ambition to be on television. The ice is getting crowded and the reporters are swarming over the place. The team now looks forward to a trip to Florida, expenses paid by hamburger Tycoon Tesker Houghton and as the picture fades out we see Carolyn Barker holding back Coach Johnston as he tries to stick his head into the champagne which fills the Stanley Cup.

THE EASTERN TOWNSHIPS CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The E.T.C.M., as usual, took an active part in this school year.

The staff consisted of: Mr. S. W. W. Lynch, Director, who also taught piano and wind instruments. Miss E. MacFadzen taught piano and theory, working mainly with the older group. Mrs. A. P. Gordon taught piano to the younger ones, and both these piano teachers were very busy with their many pupils. Mrs. A. MacK. Rose taught voice, and Mr. D. Wheeler, drums. Mrs. G. Fulcher was our patient, ever present registrar.

The faculty and music students had the pleasure of attending a few recitals each term, all of which were a great credit to the teachers.

This year's organizations, of the E.T.C.M. were, the Girls' Chorus and the Orchestra. The Girls' Chorus took part in the Remembrance Day Service, the Christmas Carol Service, an evening service, held in St. James United Church, Montreal, in which the boys also participated, and in the final concert of the year.

The Orchestra and the Girls' Chorus were both in the Production of the "King's Courtship", this year's operetta.

The Conservatory has been very handicapped since the loss of Pierce Hall, but with plans for the new building progressing, it is hoped that we shall soon take part in many more musical activities.

—Elizabeth Webster.

The Cadet Officers and N.C.O's were chosen from a class of boys held during September and October. At this class the candidates learned the elementary drill movements and commands and the military knowledge necessary for their cadet duties.

The instructors have been Captain MacPherson and Lieutenants Boswell and Higginbotham.

Almost every cadet used the range this year. While some cadets were removed from lists rather early, a large number went on to shoot for badges. All the shooting was done under the direction of Mr. MacPherson and in the cadets free time.

As in years gone by, the parades were held on the back campus until cold weather, and then they were held in the Gymnasium throughout the winter. When the parades were held on the back campus, company drill and Individual Platoon drill were carried out.

During the winter, lectures on map reading and instruction on the Bren Machine Gun were given.

On November 11th the Corps turned out with the 74th Field Battery and marched to the Haskell Opera House where the Armistice Service was held.

Captain MacPherson took over duties as Commanding Officer of the Corps.

When Spring came, the Company once more took to the back campus for their drill. Route marches were carried out, and the band, which had been practising all winter, gave the boys something to march to.

All in all, every officer, N.C.O. and member of the Corps did his utmost to uphold its name.

The Army Cadets were formed again this year, as in the past, on the first Wednesday afternoon of the school year. Uniforms were issued for the next parade.

Promotions for this year were as follows:

The Annual Cadet Inspection

The annual inspection was held on May 23. The cadets were inspected by Colonel Armitage of the Ottawa Affiliated Regiment. The cadets marched for about an hour, led by Cdt Major David Houghton. After being inspected, the corps carried on with individual platoon drill which were followed by diversified training which was conducted by individual cadets from the corps. In the past few years the corps had not presented any physical training which, however, had been an annual contribution to the inspection some years ago. This year there was an excellent display put on by the boys' gym team. This was followed by a speech from Colonel Armitage who praised the corps on their excellent showing. He then awarded the Strathcona Trust Medal to Cdt Major David Houghton for outstanding leadership in the corps.

After the inspection the Officers and N.C.O's attended a tea in the College reception room. There were also a few other guests.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

A service of remembrance commemorating those who fought for freedom in the two great wars was held on November thirteenth under the auspices of the Stanstead Frontier Branch of the Canadian Legion and the American Legion.

The service was held at the Haskell Opera House where the guest speaker, Rev. C. G. Hepburn, Archdeacon of Ottawa, spoke on the Two World Wars. The last post was played by David Houghton.

After the service the parade returned to the College Memorial Gates where Michael Gerrie, on behalf of the Stanstead Cadets, and Miss Mary Flint on behalf of the I.O.D.E. placed wreaths.

On November eleventh another Remembrance Service was held at the college. The entire school attended the service which was conducted by Rev. G. Tenneson and Mr. L. C. MacPherson. Ben Gray was presented with a scholastic award. After the Honour Roll was called, the Last Post was again played by David Houghton, followed by the Great Silence.

—Patricia Vokey.

GIRLS' INITIATION

Although there was great talk about "initiation", the newcomers to the College did not know when this event was to commence.

We soon found out, to our sorrow and the amusement of the "old girls". It was a Friday night, September 17th. A number of old students were arriving at the College, apparently just for a visit. At approximately eleven o'clock everyone retired, and the next thing I felt was a handful of cold spaghetti in my face. It was "initiation"! Each "old girl" took charge of a "new girl". We were commanded by them to make two beds, our own and our room-mates. We then put on our jeans, and since we were to dress warmly, the old girls assisted in this by putting pillow cases over our heads, and tying our hands behind our backs. Still half asleep we trudged outside.

Under a full moon, we played soccer, and then ran around the track when it was light enough. We also entertained some of the teachers with "good morning" songs.

We were then hustled upstairs, and lined up in the hall to learn the "Alma Mater". As we were bellowing, each newcomer was escorted to the bathroom, where we were told to duck for a quarter, which was in a pan of water. Instead of a quarter we came up with a green mask, consisting of a mixture of oat meal and toothpaste. From there we were ordered to the tunnel where our faces were decorated with lipstick and a sign, inscribed with our names, ages, and a phrase about ourselves, were hung around our necks.

The boys were much amused by our new "mode" as we reluctantly trudged around the heart. We were then lined up, and the new boys asked us such intimate questions as "What is your telephone number?", and "Will you marry me?"

At long last it was breakfast time, and we thought we could wash, but no, we were told that Initiation had just begun.

With one oxford, one running shoe, one sock and one black stocking, tunics and blouses back to front, hair in curlers, and our green masks still on, we paraded to breakfast a few minutes later.

Much to our astonishment, after eating, we discovered there was going to be an entertainment, by us! This embarrassing event was soon over, and we were permitted to dress decently, although we had to wear our signs for a week.

All this ended with the "Freshman Prom", which we all attended, and all agreed that we were now truly "Initiated".

—Louise Milne.

THE BOYS' INITIATION

None of the other freshmen believed me when I told them I had heard faint rumours and idle talk concerning "Initiation Week", which is usually ushered in on the first Saturday of the school year. However my suspicions were fully confirmed when, on the night before that hectic day, several "Old Boys" arrived at the college, "just to pay us a friendly weekend call". Alas and alack, at 4:30 A.M., I heard the meaningful whoops of the raiding party. I knew then that those many weekend visits had not been wrought on the spur of the moment or on impulse. Everything had been almost diabolically planned.

The next instant the onslaught filtered into our rooms. Pillow cases were tied down over all the victims' heads. We stood there for a minute like humiliated members of the "Klu-Klux Klan", because you see, our hands were tied with our own neckties or bathrobe sashes. After that minute of suspense we were abruptly whisked off to the football field or rather the boys' campus.

Once on the campus we were made to run in all directions. Many head-on collisions prevailed. I still have not found whose nose my head connected with, but a friend of mine in the Ross House had a nose which he thought was possibly broken in four places. Oddly enough we survived the first round at this game.

Now the second round of this affair took place in the old gym. All the freshmen's shoes were tied together in a heap on the floor. At a given signal we had to dash forward, paw frantically through people and shoes, and come up with our own pair. The penalty for not being successful in this feat — making several laps around the gym. The prize for the winners — free servings of garlic, which were rather forcefully administered!

While still in the old gym, all the principles were daubed with printer's ink, lipstick and toothpaste, with the latter being well rubbed into the hair. At last this gaudy South Sea spectacle hustled out and off to the Lamb House, urged on by the switches of their seemingly tireless escorts.

At the Lamb House the teachers were serenaded by "willing persons", who did rather well in such selections as "Good Morning, dear teacher".

The next stop was the Canadian Customs, and away went the mob running backwards down Rock Island hill, accompanied by those two worthy guards of honour, Mr. MacPherson and Mr. Semon.

At the Customs we attempted to clean up the front of the place, but with little assistance from the "Old Boys", who continually went behind us and threw more litter on the clean places.

Soon up the hill we went and back to the girls' campus, where the fair young maids of the hour were waiting to be "introduced" to us. Somehow or other a certain dramatic embrace was demanded of us with some of the girls.

At the initiation breakfast some of the freshmen were asked to either sing a song or play an instrument. Garry Mathams, "spanked" out a little western ditty, which surpassed our expectations and encores were demanded. A Ross House quartet condescended to render their version of "The Happy Wanderer". The boys were also entertained when Priscilla Clark blasted out a few hot licks on the trumpet and Eva Daniel very charmingly modelled a flour sack.

After the breakfast all freshman boys were informed that they had to replace their usual neckties with ones of red ribbon; open doors for seniors, walk up and downstairs backwards, and not speak to a girl for the durations of Initiation week. Ha! As for walking up and downstairs backwards, only the phlegmatic ones on the flats complied with the rule.

When all the toothpaste and lipstick had been scribbled off and most of the printer's ink had gone down the drain, many of the boys felt duly initiated into this institution. Surprisingly enough, too, is the fact that to this day some of the new boys still have a few fragments left of their red ribbon ties to bring back memories of an exciting and wonderful experience.

—Charles E. Johnston.

INTERNATIONAL NIGHT 1955

One of the highlights of the school year 1956 was International Night, held on November 19 at Sunnyside gymnasium.

Weeks before the event, preparation began around the College with students hurrying and scurrying trying to get decorations for their booths, and costumes to match.

The booths were beautifully decorated to attract both young and old alike. Some of the most interesting were the Mountain Dew Booth, Ice Cream Booth, Fortune Telling, and Fish Pond. Flags of different countries were used to establish the significance of the evening. Students and teachers are to be highly praised for their efforts which resulted in the colourful event.

The main event of the evening was the entertainment put on by the students of all grades. First there was Choral Speaking — "Three Little Kittens" by Grade 2 in Sunnyside. Following that was the Square Dance put on by a number of students from Grade 2B in Sunnyside. A song by Grade VIII and IX girls from Sunnyside was sung entitled "Happy Farmer Boy". A number of students from grade IV in Sunnyside sang the songs "The Crow" and "The Fiddler". A square dance done by grades VIII and IX from Sunnyside was very successful. Another outstanding number was the Boys' Gym Team from the College doing a gym demonstration. As a finale the College put on a Stage Play entitled "In The Suds", with splendid acting by Heather Ramsay, Georgia Copland, and Owen Wheelock.

There were approximately eight hundred people who attended the event, both to enjoy themselves and to help others. I am quite sure that they went home confident that they had done both.

—Ronda Cady.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The annual Hallowe'en festivity took on a different theme this year. It was celebrated in the form of a party where students could enjoy watching television or playing cards, checkers, etc.

The scene of activity in general were in the library, boys' pool room, and the reception room. No doubt hidden talents of the skill of card playing were revealed by some of the most "unexpected" students of the College.

Refreshments were then served in the recreation room through the kind courtesy of Mrs. McGilton. This was followed by a sing-song which brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

—Allan Wilkins.

THE FRESHMAN PROM

The Freshman Prom this year was held on the Saturday closing Initiation Week. The guests were received by Mr. MacPherson, Miss Masten, Peter Farwell, and Joan Thomson, and were welcomed by M.C. Mike Gerrie who did a splendid job throughout the evening. A musical programme was presented in the reception room before the dancing commenced. Elizabeth Webster gave a piano rendition of "In A Rose Garden". Georgia Copland sang "I'll See You in My Dreams" to Mrs. Gordon's accompaniment. Then Alex Philip, with background by Mr. Lynch, played "Unchained Melody" on his trombone. A promenade took us to the dining room for dancing.

Later in the evening there was further entertainment in the form of "Barnacle Bill, the Sailor", performed by Foster, Curtis, and Birch. This was very amusing, especially to the old students who knew these boys. After the refreshments, which were served next, the dancing continued until the end of a most enjoyable evening.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

The Christmas Dance this year was held on December 21st in the dining room with Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, Georgia Copland, and Malcolm Lewis acting as staff and student hosts and hostesses. The room was decorated very becomingly in red and green with a large Christmas tree in the corner under which were gifts for each member present.

Highlights of the evening were: a program in the reception room, including a rendition of "No, John, No." John was played by Tony Rotheran and the fair maiden by Miss Benny Audet. Other characters in the skit also included David Foster, David Bereh, Philip Curtis, and Chuck Johnston. The background for this number was provided by piano and chorus. Second on the program, "The Ross House Dolls" presented a fashion show of exquisite fashions straight from China (otherwise known as the Girls' Flats.) Refreshments were then served and jovial old St. Nick (David Houghton) came on the scene to hand out the gifts from under the tree. This was followed by a quiz program, capably directed by M.C. Peter Farwell.

The M.C. for the remainder of the evening was Mike Gerrie, who did a wonderful job and helped make our Christmas Dance the success that it was.

CHRISTMAS DINNER

Our annual Christmas dinner this year was held on Sunday, December nineteenth.

To begin the festivities of the day the College attended a carol service at the Centenary United Church where Mr. MacPherson recounted the story of the "Fourth Wise Man" and the Girls' Chorus sang four beloved Christmas hymns.

Dinner was then served in the college dining room, banquet style. Candles, Christmas decorations and lots of turkey added to a wonderful atmosphere and a delicious dinner.

We then retired to the reception room to hear on records the immortal "Christmas Carol" and to bring to a close an eventful day of Christmas celebrations.

—Allan Wilkins.

A TRIP TO FLORIDA

A representative from Derby Line and I representing Rock Island and Stanstead College, on behalf of the Rotary Club were given a trip to St. Augustine, Fla.

The notable cities passed through were New York, Washington, Raleigh, and Savannah.

St. Augustine namely, Silver Springs near Ocala, Daytona Beach, and Marine Gardens.

The remainder of the time was spent going through museums, factories and the greatest attraction of all the fort in St. Augustine. This fort has flown under five flags, Spanish, French, British, Confederate, and American.

We attended a Rotary meeting where we met four other people from Spain, France, Belgium, and Cuba. While there each gave a speech. The above mentioned four spoke on Christmas in their respective countries.

My friend spoke on the American border of our community and I spoke on the Canadian section.

We returned via the same route and gave another speech at Rotary Club here about our trip.

—Rodney Bacon.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

During the second week of February, Joel Bonn (junior) and Rodney Bacon (senior) from Stanstead College along with Cyril Lynch (junior) from Sunnyside School went to Ayer's Cliff to take part in a Public Speaking Contest competing against various other schools in this county. The contestants chose their own topics and many interesting speeches were heard. A Magog junior won first prize, speaking on Sports, while Coaticook won second prize. In the senior section, a senior girl from Coaticook won first prize speaking on Atomic Energy and its uses while Stanstead College won second prize. It is interesting to note that both second prize subjects were about trips. Many teachers were on hand including our Principal who was chairman.

SADIE HAWKINS and ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

This year Sadie Hawkins and Valentine's Day were celebrated as a combined event during the weekend of February the tenth, eleventh and twelfth. Events got off to an "expensive" start for the girls when Bugbee Business College had a candy sale Friday noon after dinner. Tuck shop at three forty-five was also an expensive ordeal for females.

The girls asked their selected specimens downtown Saturday afternoon, and each boy came back looking fatter, dragging along a bewildered and almost penniless escort.

A dance was scheduled for Saturday night, but it was decided that the usual movie downtown would be more suitable. (The boys didn't mind a bit, I am sure). So once again the girls paid the treat, making them appreciate the many other weekends when someone else provided the "free" ticket.

On Sunday afternoon the boys were asked uptown, where they once more were granted what they preferred. Not a word was uttered from the girls, such was tradition.

The couples later returned to the school for a dinner of roast turkey and apple pie served banquet style.

Vespers followed at seven, where we had an interesting talk given by Mrs. F. Stanton, who was once the Dean of Girls at Stanstead. The topic of her address was the many careers offered in the church, and this was greatly enjoyed by all.

This concluded the festivities of the Sadie Hawkins and Valentine's Day. It will long be remembered by the girls as a weekend of great financial discomfort, but by the boys as a weekend of lots to eat, a free show and a bulging pocketbook on Monday morning.

THE BUGBEE PROM

The Bugbee Prom proved to be a tremendous success this year. It took place on the 10th of March in the school dining room. The Irish Theme was predominant in the decorations in the hall.

At the start of the Prom every one was introduced to the reception line which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, Miss Holmes, Mr. Lapeyre, Betty Ann Colt, and Bill Ross.

The climax of the evening came at the beginning of the Prom when the Queen "BEE" and King "BUG" were nominated. The two surprised people were Eva Daniel and Lin Lacoste. Miss Masten crowned the King and Mr. Hackett crowned the Queen. This event was rounded off by a former student of Bugbee who showed his gratitude by giving the King and Queen lovely corsages. Betty Ann Colt emceed and did a very good job.

During the course of the evening two skits took place in the Reception Room. The first skit was Mrs. Wallace singing with the help of the boys from the Annex. Four of the senior boys who live in Bugbee, sang with the help of the chorus from Bugbee. The second was a musical skit sung to the tune of John Brown's Body. The participants were Betty Labaree, Bill Ross, and Ivan Kyle.

One of the reasons for the success of the Prom was the fine music played by the school dance band. Cynthia Gordon at the piano, Dick Ferland on Sax, Butch Theodore on Drums, and Alex Phillip on the Trombone.

Refreshments were then served followed by dancing and the successful evening came to a close with the singing of the Alma Mater.

Mr. MacPherson: "What is the most important thing Chemistry has given to modern civilization?"

Voice from the rear: "Blondes!"

Mr. MacPherson: . . . after long explanation of gain and loss of electrons). ". . . and so we see that we are ten electrons short. Class, where are those electrons?"

McGILL ALUMNI PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST

On the evening of Saturday, January 28, I travelled with Miss Masten and Mr. and Mrs. Tenneson to North Hatley to take part in the semi-finals of the annual McGill Alumni Public Speaking Contest for girls. The contest was held as part of a meeting of the St. Francis Valley Branch of the McGill Graduate Society and took place in the dining room of the Pleasant View Hotel. The contest was preceded by a delicious buffet supper. As one looked around the room it was not difficult to pick out those who were the contestants — the ones with the untouched food! I would suggest that next year they have the contest first and the supper later!

During supper, the six contestants picked from a hat the number under which they were to speak, and so, until the judges, Mrs. John York, Mrs. E. Maines, and Mrs. T. Cadman had retired, I did not know who my opponents were and where they hailed from. During this intermission, however, President G. M. Young, gave the names and schools to the numbers and we each stood separately for our applause.

The contestants were: Susan Schider from King's Hall who had spoken on "Popular People"; Roberta Langford from Lennoxville High who had told us about "An Unforgettable Experience"; Gale Griffith from Sherbrooke High who had a very interesting talk on "The Five C's In Success"; Flora MacKenzie from the Princess Elizabeth High in Magog whose topic had been "Television"; Patricia Mayhew from Coaticook with her subject, "The World Crisis — Human Relations"; and Georgia Copland from Stanstead College. I spoke on "Why I Like Being a Teenager".

The judges took a painfully long time in making their decision. It think it was especially painful for the chairman who was required to keep the audience amused during the intervening time. When the judges did return, however, they announced that their first choice was Gale Griffith from Sherbrooke High. Stanstead College received the runner-up spot and Pat Mayhew from Coaticook was third. Gale was to represent the St. Francis Valley Branch at the finals in Montreal on March 13. Unfortunately she did not fare quite so well there. By coincidence it was my next door neighbour, Julie Adams from Westmount High who won the contest. Her topic was "A New Canadian".

Model United Nations Assembly

I had the honor of being chosen to go to the the sixth Annual Model General Assembly of the United Nations held on May the eighth, ninth, and tenth. It was held at Plymouth Teachers College, Plymouth, New Hampshire, and was sponsored by Plymouth College and Rotary International.

On arrival the delegates (I represented Iraq) received material on their respective countries and a tag telling their country (with a flag), the delegates' names and their school. These were worn at all times.

In the afternoon there were welcoming speeches by the President of the College, the District Governor, and the Model General Assembly Steering Committee. The A Capella Choir sang a few numbers and an address: "A Look at American Foreign Policy", was given by the Professor of Government for the University of New Hampshire.

The first Plenary session (there were four) took place and then the three committees of the general Assembly were held. Committee I, was "Political and Security", Committee II was "Economic and Financial" and Committee III was "Social, Humanitarian and Legal" (I was in the latter committee). These committees met and argued over the agenda for the following General Assembly sessions. Problems discussed were (1) Admission of Communist China in place of Nationalist China; (2) Egypt's and Jordan's attack on Israel borders; (3) French rule in Tunis, Algeria and Morocco; (4) Relief and Rehabilitation of displaced persons removed from Israel and various others.

Highlights of the General Assembly were: (1) Speech by the Chinese delegation in Chinese; (2) Speech by the Delegation of France in French; (3) Cuban speech in Spanish; (4) Australian speech in "Osstrylan"; (5) the walkout of the entire Russian bloc because of insults.

Highlights of the general schedule were the banquet (lobster salad, etc.) and Cafe International. At the latter the delegates dressed to represent their respective countries and prizes were given. It was actually a dance and there was a talent show produced by the College where yours truly was asked to sing.

At the report made to the Rotary Club on our return, the boy from Derby Academy mentioned that I had — quote "helped promote international relationships by accompanying a certain cute New Zealand delegate to the restaurant after the dance" unquote. I must state that New Zealand and Iraq are on fairly good terms so it was strictly to "Further International Relationships."

This was the largest of the six model Assemblies with about 150 students from New Hampshire, Vermont, and from southern Quebec. We "were" the United Nations while we were there and we found that world problems are truly difficult to solve. We also found that by compromising a bit some sort of agreement could often be made.

I know, personally, that I acquired a great deal of knowledge and I certainly had the best time I have ever had in my life, anywhere or any place.

I wish to thank everyone concerned who made it possible for me to go and urge everyone else who gets a chance to go to this Assembly — take it. You will never regret the experience.

—Gary Mathams, Grade 11.

Rotary Public Speaking Contest

In March Owen Wheelock went to Sherbrooke as a representative from Stanstead College in the Public Speaking Contest sponsored by the Montreal Rotary Club.

There were seven schools represented at Sherbrooke: Bishop's College School, Sherbrooke High School, Knowlton High School, Thetford Mines High School, Sutton High School, Granby High School, and Stanstead College.

The winner was Peter White from Bishop's and second place went to Gordon Echenberg from Sherbrooke. These two boys were to go to Montreal in April for the semi-finals.

The winner and our representative spoke on "The Value of a Good Teacher" and the runner up chose as his title "Credo". These talks were held at the New Sherbrooke Hotel and provided an interesting evening for all.

INTER-CLASS DEBATES

On May 11th the semi-finals of the inter-class debates were held in the main room of Bugbee Business College. The topic under debate was: "Co-educational Schools are Better than Separate Schools." The affirmative was upheld by Grade Ten B; represented by David Foster and Tony Rotheram; while the negative was strongly supported by Georgia Copland and David Houghton of Grade Twelve. The opposers of the motion were the winners of the debate, and they will debate against grade eleven in the finals.

AN ADVENTURE IN CITIZENSHIP

For the past six years most of the Rotary Clubs across Canada in co-operation with the Rotary Club of Ottawa have picked high school students to visit the capital for four days in May. The purpose of this is to promote better Canadian Citizenship and a greater knowledge of our Parliament institutions.

This year I was chosen to go and I left here on Sunday, May 13. Although students were arriving by bus, train, and air, everything was well organized and I was met by Rotarians and billeted at one of their private homes. Some of the students stayed at hotels.

For the next three and a half days our time was almost completely taken up with a well-planned programme. The first day there were messages of welcome from the Rotary Club and an explanation of our programme. Each morning there was a discussion lasting for an hour on Canadian Citizenship, which took place in Carleton College. There were a hundred and eighty-six students who came from coast to coast. We were broken up into nine groups. The leader of the discussions in our group was Miss P. Jewitt, M.A., Ph.D., lecturer in Political Science. These meetings took up the form of a seminar and questions and answers passed back and forth. Among some of the topics discussed were "Provincialism rather than National Spirit", and problems affecting the various sections of our country. Other topics were Canadian inferiority towards the United States, the many large investments of American capital, the participation of Canada in the Commonwealth and our future relation with Great Britain caused heated discussion.

At our luncheons and dinners, the leaders of the four political parties spoke to us. We also had an illustrated talk by the head of the Federal District Commission who showed us the future plans of our National Capital and showed how what they have done so far will fit into the final scheme.

The rest of our time during the day was taken up by guided tours around the capital. One afternoon consisted of a bus tour around Ottawa and Hull in which interesting spots were pointed out. Unfortunately, this year, as could be well understood, the famous tulips which were a gift from Holland were not in bloom. On another afternoon we made a visit to Parliament where we watched proceedings and a debate in the House of Commons, and later in the Senate. During my visit to the capital, the House of Commons was in the midst of having debates concerning the new trans-Canada pipe line. While we were in the Parliament Buildings, we went up into the Peace Tower and saw the view.

Later in the Memorial Chapel we saw the Book of Remembrance in which all the names of the Canadian Soldiers killed in the World Wars are recorded. Before we left, we were presented with Certificates of Canadian Citizenship by the Deputy Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, Mr. Fortier. Other places of interest which we visited during our stay, were the National Museum and National Art Gallery, the Supreme Court, where we were allowed to see part of a case, the Royal Canadian Mint and the Public Archives. We visited Government House, and we toured the grounds after listening to a short speech by Governor-General Massey.

It must not be thought that all of our time was spent in serious things, as the Rotary had arranged our programme so that we had some time for recreation and getting to know each other socially. There were two informal dances, one a "Get Acquainted Party" in Fisher Park High School and the other in the salon of the Château Laurier. The time spent in Ottawa went all too quickly. We had such a good time and we were just getting to know each other when it was time to leave.

Rotary is to be commended for bringing so many students from all parts of Canada together to help make us realize that we are one nation from sea to sea.

Finals of Inter-Class Debates

The finals of the inter-class debates were held in the Centenary United Church Hall at 8:30 on May 16.

Grades eleven and twelve debated for the senior Hackett trophy while grades eight and nine opposed each other for the junior Harper trophy.

The senior classes were represented by Georgia Copland and David Houghton for grade twelve and Rodney Bacon and Peter Rowley for grade eleven. Grade eleven upheld the affirmative of the topic: "Resolved That Extra-Curricular Activities Are More Important Than Curricular Activities," while grade twelve opposed the motion, and managed to convince the judges that school work is more important.

David Birch and Joel Bonn debated against grade eight which was represented by Ena Palnick and Judy Seale in the junior finals. After a most amusing debate upon the topic: "Resolved that the Emancipation of Women has gone too far," the grade nine boys were declared the victors and the cup was presented to them by Mr. L. C. MacPherson. The three judges for the debates were Mrs. Wells, Mr. Moore, and Mr. L. G. McGilton.

THESPIAN INITIATION

On Sunday, May 27 at the United Church Hall, the formal Initiation membership ceremony of the National Thespian Society took place.

The sponsor of the troupe, Mr. MacPherson, opened the ceremony. The Initiates were briefed on the purpose of the club and of its past history. Then seven candles were lit, each one representing a certain age in the development of man in the field of Arts and Dramatics. The initiates then took the pledge and were sworn in as members of the National Thespian Society.

The awards were then presented, among them the Best Thespian Award. This year this award was shared by David Houghton and Chuck Johnston.

The new initiates were:

Heather Ramsay	Malcolm Lewis
Faye Channel	Guy Genest
Ben Gray	Ray Boadway
Peter Audet	David Houghton
Chuck Johnston	Allan Wilkins

Following the initiation there was a reception held in the reception room. We were entertained by Mr. Lynch playing a recorder and Brian Taylor accompanying him on the piano, playing "Greensleeves". Next Brian Taylor and Chuck Johnston sang some songs from H.M.S. Pinafore and The Forest Prince. The evening came to a close with the serving of light refreshments.

The Excellent Operatic Production of 1956

On May 4th the Stanstead College Dramatics Club and Thespian Troupe 1056 presented the Operetta "The King's Courtship" by Arthur A. Penn, at the Haskell Opera House, under the brilliant direction of Mr. L. C. MacPherson.

An unknown aviator, under the name Mons Q. (played by Guy Genest) had landed in the vicinity of Takahama, and fallen in love with Cherry Rose (played by Carolyn Barker), daughter of the mayoress (excellently portrayed by Georgia Copland). Obligated to depart immediately, by the order of the mayoress, he and Cherry Rose were hastily married in secret. Suspecting villagers solemnly pledged secrecy until such time as there was to be no further necessity for it. Meanwhile Arreschu, chief of police, (played by David Houghton) and his police force saw to it that the mayoress' orders were carried out.

Now word had come to Takahama, the locale of the royal hunting lodge, that his Majesty, the King of Japonica, (played by Brian Taylor) was about to visit the town in search of a bride. He was a widower who mourned the loss of his only son, who had run away ten years ago, and his heart was set on finding a new wife. He had even advertised in the Matrimonial News. Unknown to her daughter, the mayoress had answered the add, sending the king her daughter's picture.

The king met Cherry Rose and was delighted with her. He stated his intentions of marrying her, but Cherry Rose, already married to the aviator, objected, which only made the king more determined to marry her. Finally, in strict confidence Cherry Rose tells the king of her marriage to an aviator who has now disappeared, so that she was not able to accept his offer of marriage.

Unaffected, the king claimed that the marriage was a mere formality, and that if the bridegroom ever returned he would behead him. The king then made a sacred vow; "If he refrained from eating anything for 24 hours, Cherry Rose would automatically become his bride, whether she was willing or unwilling, ceremony or no ceremony." If the king failed to keep this vow, Cherry Rose was free to go wherever she chose.

In Act II, the king went a-hunting with Zingo, master of the hounds, (played by Duncan MacFarlane) and his huntsman to try and forget his hunger in the excitement of the chase. Despairingly, Cherry Rose pleaded to escape the net into which she had fallen. She explained to her friends, Marigold and Silver Bell that she was not able to tell her mother about her predicament because the Mayoress would never have consented to have an ordinary airman for a son-in-law rather than a king. The King's Jester, Tong, (played by Chuck Johnston) obtained Cherry Rose's confidence and urged her not to give up hope. When the king returned from the chase in a ugly mood, Cherry Rose and the Jester tempted him with savoury dainties. His Majesty was torn between hunger and his longing for Cherry Rose, but was determined to hold out until the expiration of his vow at four P.M. Meanwhile Kerocino, Master of the Cookstove, and Kalores, Master of the Recipes, (played by Ben Gray and Allan Wilkins) have met and fallen in love with Silver Bell and Marigold (played by Priscilla Clark and Pat Nayler).

Mons Q returned a few minutes before four o'clock and learns of the complications. He appeals to the King, but his Majesty was determined to win his bride. Thereupon Mons Q. reveals his secret identity, for he is the king's son who ran away so long ago. However, the king still will not give up Cherry Rose.

At five o'clock, by the Jester's watch, the King orders a feast. The Jester now took affairs in hand, and as soon as the king has had his first bite to eat, he tells him that he has broken his vow, since daylight saving time has just gone into effect, so that the king actually partook of food 23 hours after the utterance of his vow, and not 24 hours after, so that His Majesty had broken his vow, and Cherry Rose and Mons Q were declared happily married. The final climax of the play came with the king's statement that he would marry the Mayoress.

Everyone concerned with the operetta worked very hard to make it the success it was, especially those on the cost, in the orchestra, and on the various committees which made the actors look very Japanese.

Mons Q.	Guy Genest
Cherry Rose	Carolyn Barker
Mayoress	Georgia Copland
Marigold	Priscilla Clark
Silver Bell	Patricia Nayler
Tong, the Jester	Charles Johnston
Zingo	Duncan MacFarlane
Kalores	Allan Wilkins

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE

GRADE SIX and SEVEN

Our grade six and seven Household Science classes consisted of four girls. In these classes Mrs. Fleming has taught us to sew, cook and many other important things. In grade six they learnt to sew tea aprons. Grade seven made skirts, blouses, pyjamas. In cooking we made cookies and salads. We are now looking forward to the Fashion Show at the end of the year. The girls all want to be as successful in our Household Science next year.

—Lillian Bernec.

GRADE EIGHT

Our grade eight Household Science class consists of four girls. We have gained a great deal of helpful information regarding deportment, social relations, group living, and responsibility to ones self. We also have had lectures on Health, personality, community life, and baby care. First Aid was also given by our teacher. In cooking we made cookies, cakes, and candy. During one week we made salads of any type we wished. Before Christmas we sewed and learned many new stitches. Handwork, such as embroidery, knitting, and crocheting are all part of our Household Science course. Towards the end of the year a fashion show has been planned in which we will wear the articles we have made and our handwork will be put on display.

—Judy Seale.

GRADE TEN

The grade ten Household Science class was quite large this year. The girls were given their choice in the article of clothing they wished to make. Among the many attractive garments were: dresses, blouses, skirts, jumpers, and formals. We will have a chance to show our clothes in June when we plan to have a garden party — with an exhibition of hand embroidery and our work. Open discussions on health, deportment, social relations, money and time budgets were also part of the course. Besides sewing we tried our hand at cooking. A few of the many tasty dishes made were pies, salads, casseroles, candy, and biscuits. I'm sure that this year's Household Science class will be a great help to us all in our future years.

—Melody Rice.

GRADE NINE

In the Household Science course for grade nine this year we found ourselves a very small class — only three. Lectures on personal responsibility, money and time budgets have been given. Group living and social relations have been included in the course and have been helpful to us all. We each decided to sew different articles — one made a dress, the second a skirt, and the third a jumper. We found this to be an interesting experience and it is so rewarding to see something develop into an article of clothing by your own hands and effort. In cooking we made cookies, candy, salads, and a casserole. I'm sure this course will help us in our future.

—Corinne Lentgis.

GRADE ELEVEN

Four of the grade eleven girls have spent a profitable year in Household Science, in sewing, cooking, interior decorating, and budgeting our money. In June we are planning to help grade ten to put on a Fashion Show. For this dresses have been made and hand-made articles have also been made to be exhibited at this Fashion Show. Each Wednesday was spent in cooking such things as cakes, pies, casseroles, and salads. Many periods were also spent in personal discussion of many topics all of which have helped us greatly to learn how to cook, sew, and run a home properly and to live in this modern world. As the senior class we wish to thank Mrs. Fleming for helping to guide us through our last year at Stanstead College.

—Arlene Probyn.

THE CHEERLEADERS

CHEERLEADERS

All set? You bet!

Due to certain difficulties, the cheerleaders were rather late in getting organized this year, but very soon after the commence of the football season, they made their appearance on the scene with Ronda Cady, Bev. White, Georgia Copland, Heather Ramsay, Louise Milne, Faye Channell, and Eva Daniel doing the honours. Faye deserves many thanks for the help and suggestions she gave as a member of the last year's cheer squad.

When our football team travelled to Quebec on a Friday night, we followed the next day to cheer at the game. It was an exciting trip and an exciting game though the second half began perhaps to show the effects of our boys' night in Quebec! Appreciation goes to Mrs. Lemon who so kindly provided our transportation.

When basketball season arrived, the number in the group was reduced to five. We worked at our cheering during this season and got a great deal of enjoyment out of it. We were treated to a fine display of how the art should be performed, when St. Johnsbury came to play our boys. Their cheerleaders were an example for any cheer team and after their visit we practiced even harder to improve ourselves.

Though we were hoping to cheer at the Visser Trophy tournament in Lennoxville, our team's morning loss made this an impossibility and so with a "boom-alacka," a "chic-alaeka," and a "rah, rah, rah," the cheerleading season came to a close.

THE HIGHWAYMAN

Riding quietly, slowly through the dark lonely lane,
I stop my horse suddenly with a fear
For I hear what I thought—the tap tap of a cane
Was I right about this noise that came to my ear,
Was it only the tap tap of a blindman's cane
Or was it the thump thump of a tall black horse
With its dreaded rider — the highwayman ?

Quietly I dismount my pony
I listen for a horse or a cane,
I expect a sound on the road so stony,
Then I hear it, and louder it comes,
I see to my great surprise and horror,
A black masked rider.
Quickly, swiftly past me he tears,
Yes it is the dreaded highwayman !

SCHOOL WITH A SMART TEACHER

School is a place for work,
And not a place for fun,
The teacher shouts across the desk—
A chalk fight has begun.

The boys are getting restless
The teacher is getting sore,
For underneath young Peter's desk
She sees an apple core.

She eyes young Peter strangely,
And says with quite a boom
"Peter bring those apples here,
And then please leave the room."

Now she looks across at me,
I wonder what I've done,
For unknown to me under my desk,
She's seen my water gun.

She sends me to the office,
I'm biffed until I bawl,
I'll never bring the gun to class,
At all, at all, at all.

—Charles Milet, Grade 7.

A GHOST STORY

Pardon me, did I startle you ? I understand, you did not hear me coming, and this lonely countryside is apt to make you feel jumpy, especially on a night, like this. Do you hear the wind howling as it passes between the branches of yon oaks by the roadside ? Some superstitious folk believe it to be the voices of people long dead, back to haunt the spots where they lived. You don't believe in the supernatural ? Well, each man to his own opinion.

I noticed you were gazing at the old Baxter place. Would you care for a closer look at it ? Come then.

Here we are. You no doubt wonder at the unkept lawn and unpainted building. Well, the fact that the place has remained untenanted for twelve years would alone suffice to explain its disreputable condition. However it may be added that the former owner, old George Baxter, did not attach much importance to the appearance of his home. He was an educated man and the author of several books dealing with nature, but he lived up here in the seclusion of the hills. Many rumours circulated about him and he became a sort of local legend, but that did not bother him.

Two young men believing him to be the possessor of some wealth and knowing he did not trust banks, came to his cabin one night with the intention of robbing him. They threatened him with a razor and when he resisted, they slashed his throat. Horrified by their deed, they flew from the scene and gave themselves up to the police. There are still vestiges of the struggle inside. He was a very powerful man. You may have heard how his ghost comes back occasionally to visit his house.

Would you care to step inside ? All right then. Oh, I understand, it is late and you must be on your way. Would you like me to accompany you for a distance ?

I think I know more about the dead man than anyone else around here. Why ? Because I am the ghost of the late George Baxter.

—Richard Norton, Grade X

A FISHY TALE

A young man named MATT HAMS was a STEWART in the Air Force, and had just come home on LEITH (leave). MAN! Was he happy! He was a BACHELDOR. He was a big BRUCE of a man with PHILIPS (full lips) and a ruddy complexion. A LEC of hair did not take away from his handsomeness. He had been a football player—not on a Candian team—but had been a Los Angeles RAM, SEY??

He decided to take out a girl. Would it be Betty, or Jan, or Carol, or BEV, ER LEY?: He decided to take out Jan. She was a little ROW-LEY-poly, but who cared???

He knew she'd like fish to eat at the nightclub he was taking her so he phoned to the nightclub to make arrangements. They said they had no fish, but if he'd bring some they would prepare it for him. "KEL SEY (I'll see) what I can do" he said, hanging up the phone.

It was a hot day and he could hear the CADY-dids singing in the trees. Hopped into his old BLACH FORD ear and drove to the sea shore. He stopped at a likely looking place. With his RODD IE CASS (rod he east) into the water. Soon his rod began to BEN and hauled in a big WHITEfish — which, having been in salt water was naturally covered with BRIAN.

On his way home his car engine PETERed out. "I knew this car was a LEMON," he said. "Now I'll have to BOUCHARD (push hard) to make it move." "H had no luck so he had to walk back and GARY the fish with him.

That night he went to pick up his d'ARLENE (darling). He took her some GORDinias for a corsage. She was wearing a nice GRAY dress. He put his arm aRONDA (around her) and accompanied her to her taxi.

At the restaurant were many celebrities. There was old Tom Dorsey and THOM(s)SON, Jimmy. Mrs. Crosby was there, HEND ER SON Lennie was sitting with her. Sam Etchevery was there also. And SIMP(s)SON, was with him.

DAN (Then) Matt and Jan sat down and he signalled for the waiter. There was a candle on the table but it was burnt down so much that there was MAR WICK left that the candle. The waiter brought in the salad ANDRE (salad en-tree) which was very nice. After that came the whitefish with BACON strips and a small PAT of butter on it. JAN ET most of the fish herself — PROBYN with her fork for the bones.

"FER LANDS Sake," thought Matt, "I wish I was RICHARD. It will take a MILNE dollars to pay for all the things she's eating!!!"

The Stage show was about to begin, the M.C. spoke into the MIKE. He said that the singer was going to give a rendition of "GERRIE me back to old Virginny" and would like us to JOAN in the chorus if they knew it. After that she would sing a song of Scotland — A LAN where HEATHER blooms, and where the STU-ARTS came from.

The singer tripped on the way to the mike and everybody enjoyed that. "O, LAF if you want to — see if I care" cried she, in exasperation.

After she had finished singing and the applause had died down, the orchestra played "PETER 'nother nickel in" and "the St. LOUISE Blues". The music was real JIM-dandy and seemed to EDDY around the room.

After it was all over, Matt took Jan home and bade her FARWELL forever. WILKINS (Well, can) you blame him??? She had cost him all his money!!!

He had to go back to the Air Force the next day because he hadn't any money left — back to his picked VOKEYtion, which as I said, was a STEWART. LU CY (You see) — girls can be a nuisance, can't they????

AUTUMN

Autumn. The combine at rest,
Dust coated. A general overhauling.
The men surround the giant.
Streams of tools pass quickly.
Hurry! Hurry! Another job tomorrow.
Foremen watching men sweating —
In the heat of the day —
On the spur of the moment —
Clean and adjust each part.
The noon whistle — Lunch pails rattle,
A solitary reaper all alone.

—Charles E. Johnston.

WINTER AT LAST

What a deep stir I feel within myself as I take a few breaths of the wintry air. Although the sun is shining brightly, there is a nip to it, as I snap on my ski harnesses and glide across the field, down the lane, and up and down a few hills. Finally I find myself on the top of College Hill, gazing as I often do, at the magnificent view, found in this section of the country. Then, after a slight push with my ski poles, I am speeding over the packed surface, up and over that miserable hump at the bottom of the hill, stopping many feet beyond. Up the hill I tramp again and skim down the other side, less steep but longer. Many more trips such as these are made before weary, yet joyful and relaxed, I force my way homeward. The dog runs ahead, looking back once in a while as if to say, "Don't tell me you're tired already! Look at the energy I have." — and off he goes.

Se préparer est nécessaire

Si jamais vous pénétrez derrière les coulisses d'un théâtre vous remarquerez toutes ces équipes de travailleurs qui soutiennent le jeu des acteurs en scène. Depuis l'auteur de la pièce et le directeur de la représentation jusqu'aux machinistes et aux électriciens, c'est toute une petite armée de spécialistes travaillant dans un même but: le succès des acteurs en scène.

La vie est un grand théâtre et nous sommes les acteurs, mais personne ne peut monter seul son spectacle. Les acteurs ne se maquillent pas eux-mêmes. Pour réussir "le spectacle de sa vie", il faut compter sur des secours extérieurs. Il faut compter sur le secours des livres qui instruisent, des programmes d'étude et surtout des professeurs.

Il faut aussi synchroniser toutes ces actions dans un ordre parfait, toujours dans le même but: le succès.

Cela veut dire que pour "Réussir" il faut: de l'ordre, de la discipline, du travail constant. Il faut que les élèves, tels les musiciens d'un orchestre, ne perdent jamais de vue qu'ils doivent obéir au chef d'orchestre en l'occurrence: leur professeur.

HOUSES (A POETIC ESSAY)

There are houses in the city with the traffic passing by,
There are houses in the country, so serene
beneath the sky,
There are houses in the valley, and there's houses on the hill,
And there's the house where I was born, that I remember still.

And, if you ever take a walk inside a city zoo,
You'll find a lot of houses for other things there too,
There are houses for the lions, and houses for the bears,
And other kinds with open fronts so you can see them there.

And then there's haunted houses within a glade,
And sometimes you will read about the house
that Jack has made;
There's houses in the mountains, and there's houses in the Vale,
And there's the one of rock and bars, the one they call a jail.

And sometimes at the farmer's house, if you will go out back,
You'll find a little out-house, a kind of smelly
shack;
There's a dog house and a cat house, and other kinds built too,
And then of course the alehouse, where you can drink a brew.

And don't forget the glass house where people can't throw rocks,
And the little country houses and the town's apartment blocks;
And the houses for the Parliament and the houses for the Queens,
And houses on the Christmas cards that make such pretty scenes.

There are houses made of brick or stone, of wood or grass or straw,
And the Indian's Wigwam houses that the first explorers saw;
You will see a million different kinds, no matter where you roam,
But friendship is the only thing that makes a house a home.

FARMING

Every single day of the week there is something to do on the farm. Every single day dawns with cows to be milked, animals to be fed, and the stalls to be made clean.

As the farm day progresses men file to the fields in the still cool dew-damp air, to work the morning through. The heat, the unbearable heat arrives suddenly, but the sweating, sometimes sulky, sometimes smiling crew work on in the humid mist of the day, to harvest, the whole morning through.

It is afternoon. The farm day progresses. The heat-soul-searing, eye smoldering heat descends upon the men who file out to the fields to work the whole afternoon through.

The sweating, sometimes sulky, sometimes smiling crew work on, piling high the hay bales on creaking, ship-like wagons that ride the crest of each billowing ridge of the field, where the men are working in the humid mist of the soul-searing, eye-smoldering heat.

The drink is welcome. The man lifts the cup to his parched lips. He takes a slow, steady sip. He gives the girl a smile and then they talk. A shout is heard. The man obeys the order of that shout and moves toward the last-loaded wagon of the day. In his mind he sees a girl. He smiles at her. He takes the cup and lifts it to his parched lips. The water is precious, cool and relieving. He takes a slow steady sip.

"Hey, Joe! Get on the wagon!"

The last loaded wagon of the day, creaking, ship-like in the distance, rides the crest of each billowing ridge and finally disappears within the lofty confines of the hay barn.

At the hay barn the men are piling high the hay bales into one enormous pile, and dreaming of the cool of the evening when the inferno above is finally at rest.

The evening chores are done. The evening meal is begun. The papers are read. At last it is time. One by one the toil-weary forms steal out on to the veranda into the cool of the evening and the sun is at rest and is no more.

KNOWLEDGE

Morning. There's the rising bell.
It penetrates each foggy mind,
All thoughts of sleep to quell.
Ahead, there lies the daily grind.
A day where the motto "Work First" reigns.
A day of teachers who think we've brains.
A day filled with promise of substantial gains.
And when we are through we find
That there's oh, so much more of the same ahead
For we're oh, so far behind.

Evening. Let the search commence
For knowledge. First is serious thought.
Then brilliant actions. And hence
Is the endless fight for knowledge fought.
At seven o'clock the chatter ceases.
Pat begins to write her thesis.
Each one the wheels of brainwork greases,
And seeks for all that he's been taught.
"All work, no play," they always say.
For thus is knowledge wrought.

WHAT TIME IS IT ANYWAY?

(Your choice of any two titles)

It was quite a long time before I realized that the world was all wrong. In fact, It was the day after Chilton Hedges sprained his ankle. (It was too ! Anyway, you don't even know Chilton Hedges, and it wasn't his wrist. His wrist was always like that). But, as I was saying . . .

Of course it isn't all the world's fault, no, ch no, not by any means. (The Russians do a lot of it).

For instance, I do not own one single shirt which fits me. There ! That's a fact, NOT ONE SINGLE SHIRT WHICH FITS ME. My mother used to buy them for me, and I guess she never remembered how I look. (Or maybe it's a plot to drive me out of my mind). Of course, she was always thrilled by sales, (once she brought home a half-dozen falcon-hoods at twenty dollars apiece simply because they were on sale at half-price. Another time it was buggy whip-sockets). So, I would get shirts with the sleeves too long, or the tail too short, or the collar too small, or vice-versa, (or maybe both), or all, at once. Which results in my owning three dozen shirts, all of which I am ashamed to wear except when working in the garden, or when cleaning the car. (Sometimes with the shirt). All these have alterations, so, when sent to the laundry, all the too-short sleeves shrink, but the too-long ones don't, their collars shrink, (which fitted right in the first place), so the alterations must be done over, (and you know what they look like then). Lately I have taken to wearing a celluloid collar (tie painted on) and a high-button suit. But, the suit. Ah yes ! The suit.

My tailor, each time I go to him, tells me all over again that I am "Not richt". (He is German, and doesn't speak English too well, and we usually end up pointing at the pictures in the model book and nodding vigourously, and making signs with our fingers, both of us convinced by this time that the other is "not richt"). Hans, (that's my tailor) means of course that I am designed differently from any other human male. To hear him say it, and I do, quite often — ("You ir nicht der gepropern shice uppin ze cholderse"), you would think that my parents must have been Orang-Utan and Armadillo. To make a long story short, my suits don't fit either. I remember once dressing in a Pullman berth, (upper), and all that day receiving compliments on how nicely my suit fitted, and I noticed myself that it was very comfortable, of a sudden. Disrobing that evening, I found that I had buttoned my suspenders to my shorts, and my trousers to the third button up, on the vest. (I've been wearing it like that ever since). But enough of me.

Have you ever written a post card at a post office ? I have, once. It was then that I discovered that all post office desks are either too high, or too low. Also, those sponge thingamigs for gumming stamps and such, (if you should ever find one with water in it), don't work at all. They are an invention of the devil. One's fingers get all the glue, and, after struggling to get the stamp on the now sopping-wet envelope, one is usually rewarded by seeing it curl up and fall off. (I now scotch-tape them on. This also allows me to use the stamps over again if a letter returns).

This bit should be familiar to commuters around Montreal. Whenever I leave my suburban home to brave the city, I am required to take a certain orange bus. These run by a very interesting time-table. (No, we won't go into those here). Invariably, the bus I desire, say the 9.05, (exc. Sat., Sun., + Holidays, exc. St. Sebastien's Day), (don't ask me why St. Sebastien's Day) is listed as two busses, one going to Central Terminal, (where I want to go), and the other going to East End Terminal, (where I most certainly do not want to go). So, I must remember to get the one marked "Central", and not the one marked "East End". I arrive on my corner at 9:00, (naïvely thinking the bus will come at "9:05". Of course, one way, I have found, to make the bus run on time, is to get to the corner at 9:06, then the bus will arrive at 9:05.) Shivering, I wait for the bus, (it is always 32° colder on my corner than anywhere else). Along about 9:30, I spy an orange object in the distance. At last! My bus. I strain to read the tiny (yes, very tiny), sign in the window which will tell me if this bus is "Central", or "East End", and naturally I have neglected to wear my glasses, (I can't see twenty feet without them) and so I can't read the sign, (which is in its slot backwards anyway), so I must stop the bus and ask which it is. Doing so, I am surlily informed that "No, dis is nod de Central-al, dis his Heast-Hend bos". As the bus moves off, the other one, my bus, whizzes past at sixty. Since the first bus is between me and the second, I cannot signal the first, so I miss my "bos", (which is the only one for the next two hours). This is about the time I go home and back to bed. I have been trying now for three years to get to Montreal by "bos", but I never get past my 32° corner. You see, the world's all wrong.

But that's not all that's wrong. I could go on to tell you about all the times I have gone into public washrooms and have washed my hands, when I find that there are no more of those wretched paper dinguses to dry them on. And why, I wonder, if "un" and "re" and such are prefixes, why do we keep running across words like "uncouth" and "repair", (do you know any couth people, or have you paired friendship with them? See, silly isn't it?) and so on.

Yes, I would like to go on and tell you these things, but usually at about this point in any of my stories, the typewriter ribbon bre

The Athletic Association had a successful year under the supervision of the President, Mr. D. Boswell. Those on the Association were Mr. D. Boswell; Vice-President Gordon Henderson; Secretary Ronda Cady; Treasurer Allan Wilkins (replacing Ivan Kyle); Girls' Representative Miss Love; Executives Georgia Copland, Bill Peterson, Mike Gerrie, Ben Gray.

The Association sponsored the Football Dance which took place in the school dining room on December 6, 1955.

The Association organized the Football trips to Quebec and Ottawa, the Hockey trip to Granby, and the girls' Basketball trips to Newport and Sherbrooke.

The committee also organized the school Track Meet and gave ribbons to the winners.

The Association has been fortunate in having worked under the leadership of such fine coaches as Miss Love and Mr. Boswell.

BOYS' SPORTS

SENIOR FOOTBALL

The Senior Football team started out with many players relatively new at the game, but with careful coaching from Mr. Boswell, they improved steadily throughout the year. Unfortunately the team suffered constantly from injuries which occurred to our best players. This is natural, and due to the small number of boys able to play, the better players were often called upon to play a full game.

Gordon Henderson was elected captain of the team which did not have too good a season from the standpoint of scoring. However, from the point of view of interesting trips and the cultivation of sportsmanship, it was a very successful year. Two long trips were made, one to Quebec and one to Ottawa and several shorter ones to Bishop's and Newport. At Ashbury College in Ottawa, although beaten, the S.W.C. squad played an outstanding game. They scored two touchdowns against the powerful Ashbury team who had not been scored against all year.

With the help of Alex Philip, Mike Gerrie, and Olaf Lemon who played on both the offensive and the defensive, the backfield managed to work quite well. Others who deserve mention are Malcolm Lewis, Butch Theodore, Joe Setlakwe, and Evan Smith.

The team played six games and the scores are listed below. During all the games the boys from S.W.C. kept a driving spirit even with the odds against them.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL

Our junior football squad had a rousing but not too successful season. With captain Chuck Roberts at the pivot post there were numerous gains made on the ground as well as in the air. As in the past there were a number of players who had had some experience but most of the boys were initiated into the game. With numerous practices as well as scrimages against the senior team, the juniors soon became accustomed to the game and this helped them in future games against outside teams.

Under the coaching of Al Greer, the team managed to exhibit some thrilling moments which were encouraging to the team and exciting to the spectators. On the whole the team acquired experience which will be of great value to them in future years of football.

The senior hockey team had a very successful season with the few injuries, however, playing a rather important part in the outcome.

The season opened promisingly with a 5-4 win over Rock Island. The team next met their old-time rival, Bishop's. In both games against this team, however, Bishop's seemed to have the edge winning by scores of 5-3 and 5-2. Of the five goals scored against Bishop's, Philip and Theodore each tallied 2 with Genest netting 1. From Richmond, our team brought home a startling victory, winning easily by a score of 11-2.

The last victim for the Red and White squad was Sutton who were swamped 11-5. This gave S.W.C. the right to defend the Q.A.P.S.B. trophy which they had won the preceding year. For these finals the team travelled to Granby, followed by a busload of anticipant spectators, to play Shawinigan Falls. The Shawinigan team, however, proved too much for the Stanstead squad, winning quite decidedly by a 9-3 score to take the Q.A.P.S.B. title much to the dismay of the S.W.C. fans.

When all the dust had settled, the line of Philip, Theodore, and Zakaib emerged as the one with the greatest number of goals to their credit and Alex Philip was high scorer for the team. A word of praise must be said for Mike Gerrie who did a great job for the team while in the nets.

The Senior Basketball team had a very good and complete season. Starting out with high hopes, the team had plenty of spirit. With part of last year's "Visser Trophy" team back at the school in the persons of Alex Philip and Malcolm Lewis, captain, the team began to take shape with Joe Setlakwe and David Houghton as guards, and Chuck Roberts, Malcolm Lewis, and Alex Philip as forwards. Also this year, the team had a good deal of depth both on defence and offence.

Under the fine directing hand of Coach Dave Boswell, the Stanstead squad played a good many of their games against strong American teams such as St. Johnsbury, an "A" team in the States, which meant that they were in a class whose standard is far above Canadian high school basketball. This gave the boys a good deal of needed practice. As well as these two games against St. Johnsbury, several games were played against Derby Academy, two against a pick-up team from Sunnyside and one against the Old Boys. As usual, the Old Boys' game proved very interesting — the Old Boys' team consisting of the best players for several years back. Despite this talent, the New Boys gave them an excellent showing of team work to come out on top.

When Visser Trophy time rolled around, S.W.C. played and defeated Ayer's Cliff to gain entrance to the tournament at Bishop's. On Saturday, March 17, the team travelled to Lennoxville to meet Quebec High in the morning game. Our squad played very well only to lose to a well-balanced, hard fighting team from the Provincial capital who went on to win the championship.

Despite this defeat, the boys felt, and quite rightly, that they had had a successful basketball season.

Bantam hockey this year was not as successful as last year because of the large number of new players, but the boys gave a good account of themselves by playing sportsmanlike hockey in every game. The lack of winning games was made up by the manner in which they played. Carl Zimmerman must be especially mentioned for his brilliant work in the nets. Captain J. Kluger, B. Buckland, B. Hallot, R. Aldworth, and D. Kerr furnished a good offence and defence in front of Zimmerman. Also a word of praise must go to our manager Earl Bisson, who did a good job in helping keep the boys in line. From the point of view of games won, the season was not too bright, but from the point of view of sportsmanship, it was an excellent year. Perhaps next year the boys will excel in both. Good luck for the future.

BOYS' SOCCER

Considering the number of inexperienced players and the small number of eligible boys, the soccer team did better than was to be expected. Under the able coaching of Mr. Paradissis, the team did its daily exercises and often staged a scrimmage among themselves.

During the season, the boys played against Bishop's, Sunnyside, and the Girls' Soccer teams. The Bishop's game was the most exciting and hard-fought game they played all year. Even when losing, they didn't stop trying and they made a very good showing for themselves. Against the S.W.C. girls, the team played three games — winning all three, 1-0, 2-0, and 4-0. They didn't seem to have too much trouble with these old rivals this year.

Oswaldo Biggott, Billy Buckland, Jerry Kluger and Billy McLean deserve special mention. They did their best to help make the season successful.

This was the first year that Stanstead College was entered in the Midget League. We had a fair season with our coach Butch Theodore, and the competition was stiff all the way through the season.

Ian Greenshields, James Houghton, and Pete Smith were among the better players who helped the team along in the five games that we played. Next year we are looking forward to a longer and better season considering that the league will be better organized.

S K I I N G

There was not much skiing done at the College this year due to the fact that snow conditions were poor. However, some of us were fortunate enough to travel to Stowe and Burke Mountain, Vermont, where conditions were very satisfactory. We are all grateful to Mr. Semon and Mr. Boswell who provided transportation for these trips.

Since the College did not compete in any ski meets this year, the Athletic Association sponsored an excursion to Hillcrest (North Hatley) for those who were interested. This was much enjoyed by all who attended.

In past years a Junior Basketball team has been formed for those boys not yet ready for senior action. This year under the coaching of Alex Philip, a squad was selected. The team having great potentials, the spirit was high.

In their first game against Sunnyside School, the Red and White won an easy victory over the relatively inexperienced squad from across the way by a score of 49-18. Pete Smith and Ian Greenshields played very well for the winning team.

In the second game, the competition was keener. Playing against Derby, a strong, well-balanced team, the Stanstead team could not make the grade and lost a hard-fought game 31-29. Gordon Edgar and Pete Smith excelled in this game.

The second game against Sunnyside seemed to be somewhat better matched. Practice had done quite a bit for the green and yellow team but S.W.C. emerged as winner by 25 points, beating their opponents 60-35.

The last game of the season was played against Derby. This proved to be the most thrilling of the season. It was a clean, fast-breaking game which was entirely even right up until the last few minutes of play when Stanstead, with a splurge of power piled up points for a 33-25 win much to the delight of the fans.

All in all, the team had a very good season. Pete Smith did a great deal for the team from the point of view of scoring and he led the scoring race. Ian Greenshields, Gordon Edgar, and James Houghton also had very commendable seasons.

OBITUARIES

September 1955 — Dr. Walter C. Stockwell, son of Dr. Henry P. Stockwell for many years doctor for Stanstead College. Dr. Walter Stockwell was educated at Stanstead College and received his B.A. degree from Bishop's University in 1932 and his M.D.C.M. from McGill in 1937. After spending a year of internship in Vancouver General Hospital he was invited to return to Royal Victoria Hospital where at the time of his death he was acting anaesthetist in chief. During the Second World War he was given leave to join the armed forces and served overseas for three years with No. 1 General Hospital R.C.A.M.C. At the request of R.V.H. he was released in July 1943 to resume his duties at the hospital. He was appointed assistant demonstrator in the Department of Anaesthesia at McGill in 1943 and promoted to lecturer in 1946. The following is a quotation from a tribute issued by the Medical Board of R.V.H.: "Walter Stockwell was a great asset to the department. His competence was a comfort to patient and surgeon, and his skilful services were requested by many members of the staff for themselves and their families. His kindly manner and happy disposition made friends in all departments." Dr. Stockwell's Mother, Mrs. H. P. Stockwell, still makes her home in Stanstead during spring, summer and fall months.

September 16, 1955 — Edwin A. Young of Derby Line, Vt., passed away. Mr. Young was born at Stanstead and received his education at Stanstead College. His family moved to Derby Line. Mr. Young was employed by Butterfields, and later lived in Lyndonville, Vt. Returning to Derby Line he promoted the first movie theatre in the Boundary Villages.

December 10, 1955 — Dr. Charles W. Colby, LL.D., D.C.L., a member of one of Stanstead's oldest and most distinguished families, and former Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Stanstead College, died in Montreal.

Dr. Colby graduated from Stanstead College before continuing his higher education at McGill where he received his B.A. degree at twenty years of age, with highest honours in English and History, winning the Shakespeare gold medal. He later gained the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard, and joined the McGill teaching staff where his ability as a lecturer was unanimously acclaimed by the many students in his classes. One student writing in the McGill Daily at the time said: "All who attend Dr. Colby's lectures are charmed into wonder and pleasure at his profound learning and the delicacy with which he emits it without making it appear learning. It is not till after you have left Dr. Colby's presence that you begin to feel ignorant." Dr. Colby was Kingsford Professor of History and Head of the Department of History at McGill for fifteen years.

Later he retired from his teaching career to give full time to large business interests created by his father, the Hon. C. C. Colby. Dr. C. W. Colby was President of Northern Securities Ltd., and was a director of six companies: Moore Corporation Ltd., Remington Rand Inc., Asbestos Company Ltd., Gould Pump Co., F. N. Burt Co., and American Sales Book Co., and he was at one time a director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

He also became known for his fine publications, and he was a member of the International Congress of Arts and Science, the Canadian History Manuscript Commission, the Canadian History Association and other distinguished associations. He was also created a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour.

Dr. Colby was an ardent supporter of Stanstead College. His financial leadership, particularly during the campaign for the new Main Building, was invaluable. At the ceremonies on November 11, 1939 he laid the corner stone of the new Main Building, and gave a very significant and memorable address. Following are a few excerpts:

"The world is now torn by a battle of ideas which is forcing its way into the field of education and compelling those who have put faith in the ideals of Christendom to fight for them against the onslaught of a neopaganism which would be absurd were it not so dangerously crude and brutal."

"Into a world divided and distraught by such a conflict come those who will be taught in Stanstead College."

"To call our age one of transition means nothing because society is always in a state of evolution. It is always becoming something different from what it was in a previous generation, but in this process of progressive modification speed and direction are vital factors."

"Encompassed as we are by doubts and dangers, the school spirit which has become inbred among us is an aid of incalculable value."

"It is to institutions like Stanstead College that we look for the safeguarding of freedom in State and Church."

"Responsibilities and opportunities of those who teach in an institution with the scope of Stanstead College are in many ways greater than those which fall to the lot of teachers in universities. The personal contact is closer, the human material is more malleable, and it must never be forgotten that here, as time goes on, thousands will receive the only formal educational training they will ever get. Hence the greater need of pointing to an outlook upon life which is not narrow, and the greater the need of emphasising two essential words — thoroughness and magnanimity."

Dr. Colby's life as scholar, educator, financier, Christian gentleman and friend should remain as an inspiration for Stanstead College in the years that shall be.

greater judging by the paid-up membership highest in its history.

Don't let your Red and White spirit drop; stay in the group. Be an
